Vacation Filter

This menu item serves as an example of a filtered account list. The purpose of such evaluations is to find those employees within a population whose time accounts meet certain criteria. In this example, those employees are output who currently have more than 5 days of remaining vacation. Such a list is very helpful for managing vacation accruals at the end of the year.

By clicking the monthly journal icon, the supervisor goes directly to the monthly journal of the respective employee and can thus get a more detailed overview.

The filters can either be defined in the configuration and always queried in the background, or, based on configuration settings by the administrator, be defined by the user. In this case, the user can check on his or her own which filters to query (according to the configuration of the evaluation) and define the queried value individually.

Options for Filter Lists

Further (possible) application examples for filter lists would be:

- List of employees with more than X overtime hours
- List of employees with more than X sick days
- List of academic employees with fewer than X seminar days
- etc...
